Webdesigner at Toomba

February 2015 - Now

I am working at Toomba as the senior visual webdesigner. My main responsibility is creating communicative designs for partners of Toomba. I'm also working on translating these designs to HTML/CSS, mainly with the use of the Bootstrap framework. Contact with the client is also an important part of my role.

Design mentor at Trydesignlab.com

August 2015 - Now

In my role as a design mentor I guide students for 6-week periods and teach them everything about design. From UX to wireframing to the final visual design. I also teach them about color theory, typography and visual hierarchy. Through Skype calls I make sure I'll stay connected with the students on a direct level.

Webdesigner at Booking.com

February 2012 - February 2015

During my time at Booking.com I've worked on/was responsible for webdesigns for partners as EasyJet, RyanAir, Transavia, AirFrance and our own website. Mainly communicating the Booking.com brand towards those companies with the use of HTML/CSS and design was an important part of my role.

Constandse.design is a one man design army, that is run by Chris Constandse. I'm a full-stack webdesigner, with a strong interest in everything digital. From photography to Treehouse's Javascript course. Besides my work I'm a design mentor at trydesignlab.com where I guide students through the basics of visual design. I love to make people better through knowledge sharing.

Administrator of Free Code Camp Amsterdam

Being an administrator of this Facebook group involves setting up new meetings and keeping the group active by posting useful links and giving feedback.

Aaron Draplin workshop

At the FITC event in 2016 I attended a full-day workshop by Aaron Draplin, in which he showed his work and gave us advice on how to improve our workflow.
